NEWS FROM NOGALES

Curtis de Mexico has re-opened as an essential supplier to a number of customers and industries. At this time, Curtis de Mexico has passed a facility audit conducted by Mexico Authorities. Standards for employee health and safety as well requirements to continue operations as an essential business were the focus of this crucial audit. Employees are attending on a voluntary basis and, as stipulated by the Mexican Government, we are focusing on manufacturing products for essential businesses.

The Mexico Government requires qualification of Essential Businesses via a letter that identifies Curtis Industries/Curtis de Mexico as a supplier to companies defined as essential businesses. This letter should also include the part numbers of components purchased from Curtis Industries, as well as the end applications. This directive comes verbally from the Mexico authorities, so it is a directive we take very seriously. We just want to stress the important role these Essential Business Letters play in our continued effort to keep the production lines operating. If you are designated as an Essential Business, we strongly recommend that you submit your letter following the guidelines we have been presented. If you have any questions please contact Curtis Industries for further information.
